CANADIAN CHARTER OF RIGHTS AND FREEDOMS SUMMARY

- A constitution is the supreme law of a nation that outlines the government structure for the nation and defines and limits government power.
- The British North American Act (BNA Act) of 1867 was Canada's first constitution that set up the basic system of government that we have today.
- The Constitution Act of 1982 is the supreme law of Canada and it includes the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms.
- The Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms spells out the nature of civil rights in Canada.
- All the laws in Canada must be consistent with it. Therefore, the government of Canada and the provincial governments are required to comply with it and to protect the fundamental rights of Canadians.
- The Charter can be used to protect individuals from unfair political or legal decisions.
- All Canadians must receive equal treatment and protection under the law, regardless of their race, ethnic origin, religion, sex, age, disability or sexual orientation.
- The Rights and Freedoms guaranteed by the Charter include:
 - a) Democratic Rights: for example: the right of every citizen to vote for the House of Commons and the provincial legislative assembly, and the right to elections at least every 5 years
 - b) Fundamental Freedoms: include those pertaining to conscience, religion, thought, expression, peaceful assembly, association
 - c) Mobility Rights: to enter, remain in, or leave Canada, and to move into, and earn a living in, any province subject to certain limitations, notably to provide for "affirmative action" programs for the socially or economically disadvantaged.
 - d) Legal Rights: includes such things as the right to a fair, reasonably prompt, public trial by an impartial court.
 - e) Equality Rights: no discrimination on grounds of race, national or ethnic origin, religion, sex, sexual orientation, age, or mental or physical disability

- f) Official Language Rights makes English and French the official languages of Canada for all the institutions of the Government and parliament of Canada and of the New Brunswick government and legislature.
- g) Minority Language Education Rights in certain circumstances

All these rights are “subject only to such reasonable limits...as can be demonstrably justified in a free and democratic society.” The courts decide what these limits are.

The notwithstanding clause allows Parliament or a provincial legislature to pass a law violating any of these rights (except the equality right that prohibits discrimination based on sex). They can do this simply by inserting in such law a declaration that it shall operate notwithstanding the fact that it is contrary to a particular provision of the Charter.
